THEIR BREECHES ON WRONG.

Edwin Douglas reports in Truth that in looking over the illustrated periodicals depicting the coronation he noticed that in the photographs from life only one peer "knew how to put his breeches on," namely, with "the buttons under the knee, in the proper place, at the front, not at the sido." "This" adds Mr Douglas, "may seem a small matter, but the late King did not think so. I was staying with the late

Frank Coll, R.A., when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, called to see a full length pertrait just completed of his Royal Highness in court dress. The Prince at once said on looking at the picture : Mr Foll, it is all wrong ; you have not got my breeches on right! the fact being that the dress was sent to Mr Holl and put on by his manservant to be painted. "Mr Hoil said to me, Did you know this !" I replied, ' Yes ' and told him the story of S.r Tatton Sykes, who on seeing a young man with his buttons at the side of his legs said, "Young man, can you feel a hollow under your kneedap? Then what do you think nature made that hollow

These fish may be seen any day by the hundred on the shore in the New Territory. Do not try to catch one unless you are in good form, in any case the result will be a mud bath. The next best way of is to give a Chinese boy a cent to catch it for you : your cent will give the fish excitement, the boy pleasure and yourself amusement. The tamest way of all is to send for two from the market, and rescue them from the living grave to which all the market fish go. The grey mullet, as is generally known, is not a mullet at all, but belongs to a different family. Passing by groups of fishes which include ind the well-known, stickle-backs; of our home streams, we come in our study of spiny-finned fi hes to the serpent heads (Ophiocephali) which especially abound in this, the Oriental regiona. They are longbodied, that headed fishes, some of which grow to the length of a yard or more. They bury themselves in the mud during seasons of drought, and are said to come to be urface at intervals to get a breath of fresh

1. Shang w. Ophiocophalus maculatus. mottled markings on a white ground render

2. Tring Kung w. Ophiocephalus puticolathe well snake-head, said to be found in wells where the soil is soft.

On these fish Richardson has the following note "These Ophiocophali are carried about the streets of Canton in tube and practice is too common not only in China but also in Hongkong; there are not many salesmen humane enough to give the poor tish a blow with the back of the knife to atum it before it is out up.

Next in order of families come the Anabantidae or Climbing Parches, so called from their power, which has been proved, of climbing even high trees in search of moisture during periods of drought. These perches are said to be found, and to display their climbing powers in the upper reaches of the West River. Richardson gives Chusan (then a British naval station) as their habitat in China.

Closely connected with the above is another West River fish - Kam sau u (golden embroidery) Betta pugna-a brilliant little fish with orange streaks upon silver. In Singapore, as is well known, these fish are set to fight : Average length, 5 ins. So pugnacious are they that even the sight of themselves in a mirror will stir thom to fight.

This concludes a very hasty survey of the great brigade of spiny finned fishes; Several sections and families, many of which live in deep water, have been omitted, and no exhaustive account of local species has been given in those families which have been mentioned.

IV PHARTNEOGNATHS ... That fish should bear teeth in their throats may seem strungs to an ordinary observer, but he has only to buy the head The true mackerels, the tunnies and the of any fish mentioned below to prove that this is indeed the case. The bone which bears the teeth is placed in a position central to each side of the throat, and the one, where the name is applied to the same | Fish possessing such teeth are found in genue of fish as at home. There are five British waters, the "rock-fish" being an species of tunnies found in the Sea of example. In these propical seas however Japan, but they appear not to outer tropical | they are both more numerous and of larger waters. Only two small sub-orders now remain to be noticed the Luphobranchii (tuit gills) and the Pletognathi (soldered-jaws). The two form a receptuele .f. r a collection of piscine oddities, with which no self respecting fish, British or, Chinese, would navo any dealings.

The typical example of the first subr'er are the sea horses (hot ma. Hippocannotis) who are frequently washed ashore in Hongkong after heavy gales. The force of the tide having proved low strong for their tails, which serve as anchors, they are carried away from their moorings, and swept about at the mercy of the waves. n these fishes the gill opening is extramely minute, some of the fine disappear, leaf result is a creature which seems to have a link with snakes, fishes and sea-weeds. Strange indeed it seems to be told that "in spite of its many structural oddities. its ge etic kinship with the stickle-backs cannot be doubted. Scarcely less reputable, from the point f view of the well-grown turbot, or the sleek grey-mullet, must the last sub-order appear. They only deserve the fate which ome of them meet, to be preserved as dry section. They all sere proplicat cotion dusty our conties, though others of them having flesh under their prickles or parchment like skins, provide food for the

It is common along the shores of the colony in summer. - Chinese urchins squeeze the poor little fish till it inflates itself, they then bing it like a paper bag, and it goes off with a loud report.

In bringing these notes to a close, the writer would again disclaim for them either original ty or exhaustiveness. Re hopes that alight as they are, they are fairly scourate, though it cannot but be that mistakes have crept in. (This is especially the case where two types of fish have the same Chinese name). But if the Notes serve the natural history of the country in which hey are living they will have served the purpose for which they were written.

the office of an important firm of Wall street bankers and brokers sends in so much business that his pay averages five or six hundred dollars a week. He has a gua: antre of four hundred. Uptown he is believed to direct the concern, giving orders to tmined subordinate; and partners who are really junior to him. This man, in spite of his large reputation, is a simple salesman whose personality manages to draw customers. In the office, in any position at. all, he would be helpless, for he knows nothing more of the "street" that the average man away from it. Yel not another employee or a partner of the house can get so much valuable business for it.

A good many businesses now have justsuch men. There is not a big realty concern in any of the large cities but either has a man of this sort on its staff, or wants day, for all he seems to be doing little or nothing most of the time and leading a life of pleasure instead of grinding like other men, is actually a hard and tireless worker. Day and night he is watching the main chance, to create big trade where none exists, or to steer it out of the hands of rivals as clever as himself into his own.

Is THE ONE THAT SPREADS MALARIA SAYS. A DISTINGUISHED LONDON SCIENTIST,

Retired Stationmenter In Coylon Confirma The Verdict Of Thousands hat The Only Positive Remedy For MALARIA Id

DR. WILLIAMS PINK PILLS.

One of the best known scientific writers in England, a doctor by profession, has lately advanced the theory that the particular breed of mosquite, which infects people with Malaria only goes abread at night. Mr Edwin Herft of " Asperia Bungalow, Kandy, Coylon, could not tell you with any certainty the hour when the Malarial poison: was first implanted in his system, but no such uncertainty exists in his mind as to when and how he became cured

"It was sound time during the year 1908. when I was located as atationmaster at Matale, Ceylon.Government Railway, that Malaria, attacked me," said Mr Herft. "I had always been particularly healthy until then, but after that I found myself becoming awful chill set in ; my respiration became affected, and after a few hurried steps I had to lean against the nearest support and grap for breath, my heart all the while palpitating wildly. All day I felt languid and de-pressed, yet directly I went to bed a nervous restlesances made it impossible for me to obtain restful, comfortable sleep. My weight decreased until I became an emaciat-. 408 ed, unhealthy-looking man. So exhausted was my nervous system that I trembled at the least excitement; even the optic nerves did not escape, for my eye sight became so weak that I found it necessary-under the oculist's orders-to wear giasses.

"Despite medical attention my condition became so serious that I went into Hospital as an in-patient for a short while, but soon after my exit from there I had a relapse Then it was, through reading in the newspapers of some remarkable cures of Nervous Disorders having been wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I was led to obtain a supply of these Pills for myself. "After the second bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I experienced a keeness of appetite to which I had long been a stranger, and felt less weary and languid. Continuand enjoyed sound refreshing alcop at night. The Malaria and Ague left me, my nerves OFFICES on Ground and 1st Floors, became steady, and I was able to dispense found-a deeply-moving human drama. with the glasses for my eyes regained their and I have remained so ever since. My health to day is perfect, and, despite my sixty years, I am as strong and active as ever, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

That the rich, red blood made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People dispels Malaria, builds up the nervous system, revives appetite, restores health, is prove by the testimony of thousands of thankful cured sufferers living in all parts, of the world. Selected Poemi, by Occase William. London, Methuen and Co. By including this little volume in the General Literature series of their popular shilling library Mours Methuen and Co. have acted wisely, and the result should be to familiarise the public with some of the best work of a sad figure in the literary world The selection of writings under notice has been edited by Mr John Ross, who thinks that a selection from Oscar Wilde's early verses may be of interest to a large public at present familiar only with the always popular "Billad of Reading Gaol." This particular Ballad occupies about half the volume, as it is reproduced both in extense and in shorter form based on the original draft, this latter being included for the benefit of reciters and their audiences who have found the entire poem too long for declamation. There are some sixteen other contributions, including seven sonnets. The book should find general favour among admirers of Wilde's undoubted genius.

He is Risen Again, by CHARLES MORICE. London, Bell and Sons.

We have been endeavouring without success to fathom the purpose of this novel. The theme—that of Christ returning to earth and appearing at some gay centre of 20th contury existence—is not entirely new, but the author's treatment of it certainly is. In this instance it is at Paris where Christ reappears and we are given an unconvincing recital of the way in which His coming interferes [with the ordinary-activities of life, culminating, after what may be termed a second Sermon on the Mount, in the Prefect of the Police waiting on Jesus and in the name of the President of the Republic asking him to leave the city and the country-a request which is complied with to the great relief of the distracted populace. The whole story fails to grip. and one can nover got away from the feeling of incongruity which manifests itself all through the volume.

What a Life! by "E.V.Ld" and "G.M. London, Methuen and Co.

This little shilling paper-covered volume is an amusing skit on the illustration, which usually grace (7) the pages of the Veal,-Ngau Chai Yuk catalogues issued by the big London stores. It is a humourous biography illustrated these typical catalogue pictures, is cleverly written, and its very absurdness is bound to provoke many a smile. In their Chicken. Kai Chai proface the authors say : "As adventures are to the adventurous, so is romance to the romantic. One man scarching the pages of Whiteley's General Doves, I'an Kau ing with their use, I grew stronger every day. Catalogue will find only facts and prices ; Eggs. Hen-Kai Tan ...

> Yet to the very end his art was always true to the ideals of his youth. His novels were never without the merit of great skill in the shaping of the story from historical material well studied and understood. Indeed, Almsworth's strength lay in the union of good, honest, antiquarian scholarship with art in weaving romance, enlivened, not over burdened by knowledge of the past. He was not a genuis like Scott, THACKERAY or DICKENS, hence his work has faded almost from public memory but in his time he played an acceptable and manly part in the world of English letters and for that reason deserves to be rescued at times from the shades of complete oblivion.

> WALRING ROUND THE WORLD.

Noted Pedestrian in Hongkong.

There arrived in the Colony to-day from the Straits Mr Ralph Brown, a native of London, who is engaged on a walking tour round the world. Mr Brown, who cleims to be the foremost long-distance walker in the world paid a visit to the office of the China Mail this morning and produced plenty of evidence of the bona fides of his undertaking in the way of Government seals of the various places he has so far visited, signatures of Governors, naval and military officers of standing, Indian Princes, municipal officials, etc.; as well as countless newspaper cuttings from all parts.

of the needs of the Republic. So our trust in a happy eventual upahot is not quite unfounded. In Portugal during the twelve months past there has been a general undervour to promote integrity, sincerity and altruism among the Republicans.

Even in this sequestered little nook scintillations of the energetic public-spirited attempts of the Government have been felt. True, little has been effected as weighed against the crying needs of the Colony, but Rome was not the work of a day. It is for us to unite in unremitted patrictic effort towards our ultimate goal should be a New Portugal for our children and posterity rather than for ourselves.

We are not to expect any immediate benefits from our self-denials. The difficulties to be overcome, the uncommon energies required, are but the prognant seeds, albeit of slow development, which are to be productive of weal for others who are to be more blessed than ourselves

What we should have the right in fact exact from the new rule is a serious administration and the pursuance of a steady, demand from the new management the instant realization of all our aspirations would be tantamount to a crime which I am sure no Portuguese could incur.

As regards Macao, none could blink administration and its unstayed down-hill were overlooked, selfam reigned supreme, with disastrons consequences. To-day all is changed. The Republican Government lands a willing and prompt car to all the requirements of Macao, and the blame for all existing shortcomings or any reforms must be shouldered by me for no having sufficiently enlightened the Home Government on sundry points which are, however, now engaging their earnest attention. It is no easy task to rebuild a structure with the debris of its predecessor it is no mere six days' toil. I am able to warrant that both locally and at Home the uplift of Macao is an object of continued and untiring concern. I make no promises, "neither do I trumpot forth the designs of the Government, for I understand that the people of Macao, disillusion ed by the sad experience of sh many years want action and not big talk-they want to ee results and not to listen to homilies.

But I can assure you that the activities of the Republic will soon be sensibly cvid-enced, a proof of which we are already able to discern. However, the gratifying:

out-turn of some sorely needed measures are due not bo the new Administration but to a happy haphazard. Yet none can deny that that the Republican Government has done its level best despite heavy odds; during the critical stage of transition. As the rightful representative of the Republican Government I must say how deeply indebted I feel for the goodwill I have met with from the posple of Macao, particularly among the Chinese community, whose unflagging sympathy has provided me with willing helpers in all my administrative designs for the well-being of the Colony

They may be assured of being afforded by the Columial as well as Home-Governments all the protection they may require, and the fullest consideration of all their legitimate wants. To the population in Macso is exclusively due the conception of warm satisfaction at the establishment of the Republic in Portugal. So, as deputy for the Republican Government, as a Port-grateful acknowledgement to the whole community Chinese as well as non-Chinese.

of the Republic was celebrated at Lisbon and Oporto. The President reviewed the troops

STARTLING REPORTS.

It is impossible to ascertain the facts concerning Portugal. Official telegrams report everything of Braganza and Captain Coucciro are advancing in three divisions on Oporto. The Spanish telgrams also say that in the various towns the Monarchist troops have been enthusiastically received, and that only the garrison at Chaves resisted,

It is said to be the intention of the Monarchists to declare Oporto as the capital and to use it as headquarters of operations for the capture of Lisbon.

[Note -- Our Macae correspondent in-forms us that II. E: the Governor has received the following telegrams from the Minister for the Colonies:—

Ligon, 1st October 4.15 p.m. The reactionary elements attempted at Oporto a movement which discovered and stilled. Numerous arrests were effected of individuals who were conveyed to the fortresses at Lisbon. Complete order. in all the country
